Fiona Frick launches her new investment advisory company Circe Invest, focused on integrating Risk, Return and Sustainability in Investment Management.

- Fiona Frick, recognised as one of the most influential women in European Finance, launches her independent investment advisory company.
- Fiona Frick will leverage on three decades of hands-on experience in asset management and an unparalleled ecosystem of talents she has nurtured over the years.
- Circe Invest provides independent strategic advice on investment approaches to institutional investors.
- Circe Invest supports investors in developing tailor-made management solutions which strike a balance between risk, return and sustainability.

Circe Invest serves as an independent partner to both asset owners and asset managers, supporting them in developing tailored investment solutions. The core mission is to strike a balance between a client's unique investment objectives and their social and environmental responsibilities.

Recognised by the Financial Industry as one of the most influential women in Finance with more than three decades of experience in asset management, Fiona Frick has unique hands-on expertise in investment allocation, risk management and sustainability.

As an independent partner, Circe Invest is not tied to any particular investment products or strategies. This allows Fiona to offer unbiased advice and co-create customised solutions designed to meet each client's unique needs. Fiona has also surrounded herself with a talented ecosystem of investment specialists enabling her to cater her experience to the specific needs of investors with a practitioner mindset.

The company's name was inspired by Madeline Miller's (New York Times Bestselling author) revealing book about the ancient Greek goddess Circe; in the author own words, 'this is a story of a woman who finds her voice', one who believes in the transformative power of knowledge and hard work, having created a thriving ecosystem in harmony with nature.

Fiona firmly believes in the importance of keeping finance meaningful to society and how the success of investors is intertwined with the health of human and nature ecosystems.

Fiona is eager to share the wealth of experience she has gained from insightful individuals and extensive research over the years. She has fostered a strong public role and is respected speaker and thought leader on Finance, Economics and Sustainability. Through Circe Invest, she will continue to promote education in investment, participating in a collective effort to make finance more sustainable, and tirelessly researching the confluence between the economy, finance, and sustainability.
